- Management of credit recharge purchase requests, and mobile internet on demand, depending on the bundle to which the User has subscribed, including purchase history management
- Management of notifications
- Management of Service enhancement, including statistics management

In addition to these purposes, the User's personal data may be disclosed and used for direct marketing purposes by OPT-NC or passed on to its partners for the marketing of products and services, provided that the prior consent of the user has been obtained. The list of these partners can be found in the appendix to the OPT-NC Data Protection Policy, accessible from the bottom of the www.opt.nc website page.

Furthermore, the User is informed that the management of banking transactions is not the responsibility of OPT-NC. For more detailed information on the processing of personal data in respect of banking transactions, the User should refer to the relevant information provided by the bank concerned when making the transaction (Data Protection Policy or GCU).

LEGAL BASIS FOR THE PROCESSING OF PERSONAL DATA

Depending on the case, the processing of personal data for Mobilis Service management purposes is based on:

- Performance of the contract concluded at the request of the User, upon acceptance of the General Conditions of Use and, where applicable, the General Conditions of Sale for the Mobilis Application: for the management of Service subscription requests, the management of personal space administration, the management of call and/or SMS recharge purchases and on-demand mobile internet requests, including purchase history management, notifications management, support requests management, claims management, and security incident management;

When the User's consent is obtained, the User may change their option at any time from their personal space, from the menu at the top right of the Mobilis application.

CATEGORIES OF PERSONAL DATA PROCESSED

These periods may vary in the event of a right being exercised over the data concerned, or in the event of a dispute.
